

Abalos bucks arrest; Judge Mupas no-show

LEGAL MANEUVERING: Former Correlat Chair Benjamin Abalos (wearing) arrives at the Pasay City Regional Trial Court on Wednesday to head off an arrest warrant. At right, Correlat (D) panel lawyers Charlie Yap and John Ben Ladrangano show copies of the electoral sabotage case against Abalos.

IT WAS a race against the clock in the sala of Judge Arnes Mupas.
Knowing how quickly Mupas issued an arrest warrant against former President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo last month for an electoral sabotage case, former Chair Benjamin Abalos of the Commission on Elections (Comelec) went to the Pasay City Regional Trial Court (RTC) early yesterday.
Hours before the Correlat heard the day's 4:30 p.m. deadline for filing cases in the RTC, Abalos rushed to the court to show that he did not intend to hide when the anticipated criminal case against him was filed.

Impeachment case vs Del Castillo deemed valid

MLACE GUEST: President Aquino exchanges views with TOYM Foundation Inc. chair Manuel Pangalanan during the 2011 Top Outstanding Young Men (TOYM) awarding ceremony in Malabon on Wednesday. The TOYM is considered the Philippines' most prestigious award for outstanding young men and women.

IN A MOVE that surprised its chair, the House of Representatives' committee on justice yesterday voted to declare the long-pending impeachment complaint against Supreme Court Associate Justice Mariano Del Castillo sufficient in substance.

Justice Rep. Niel Tupas Jr. observed that the 43-7 vote on the plagiarism complaint against Del Castillo of betrayal of public trust was a "turnaround" from the 11-30 vote that declared it sufficient in form on May 18. The 25-member committee had repeatedly postponed voting on sufficiency of substance.

"It's really surprised. Including this decision is really a decision to [go on] with the proceeding. I'm not sure if this indicates an impeachment already, but for sure, it's a turnaround from the previous position," Tupas told the business at the end of the committee hearing.

He said Del Castillo would be given 15 days waiting yesterday to respond to the complaint.

The new tenant is none other than former President and now Pangasinan Rep. Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, who is under arrest on charges of electoral sabotage.

She is scheduled to be transferred to the government hospital near St. Luke's Medical Center in Tagay City on order of Judge Jose M. Reyes of the Pasay City Regional Trial Court, who is hearing the electoral sabotage case.

Except for the kitchen, all repairs for minor renovations of the 150-square-meter suite will be shouldered by the Arroyos. Dr. Nene Laguarda, VMMC director, said yesterday.

P-Noy plans on Corona 'secret'

By Christine D. Arendele

WILL IT be an impeachment case against Chief Justice Renato Corona, or an "Occupy Supreme Court" movement?

Whatever it is, President Aquino is holding his cards close to his chest after launching an unprecedented attack on the high tribunal and its chief justices, whose legitimacy and integrity he has questioned.

"I do not tell you my plans or anybody else," President Aquino told reporters yesterday in a chance interview after he attended the awarding of this year's most outstanding young men and women.

"I think at this point in time, it is important these questions should be preponderant," the President said when asked whether he would support any move in Congress to impeach Corona.

The President was referring to the questions that he had raised on the controversial ruling the high court had made in favor of former President and now Pangasinan Rep. Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo.

356 political prisoners go on hunger strike

By Elizabeth Lelaga

CALABANG CITY, Samar—Since his imprisonment in February over fraud and non-post-employment license Aquino has put on 10-12 pounds, a weight gain that has equipped him with strength and endurance for an ongoing hunger strike.

Aquino, 39, and 355 other political prisoners nationwide began the hunger strike on Dec. 5 to call on President Aquino to withdraw "lawless charges" and grant them unconditional amnesty. The strike is to end on the eve of Dec. 31, Human Rights Day.

Aquino claims a crowded, dirty life cut with 12 other inmates charged with common crimes in a teleprovincial jail outside downtown Cebu. He has given up his daily ration of rice and fish to substitute water, juice and an occasional chocolate-energy drink.

He knew what the Free Asia Movement describes as "infidel charges of illegal possession of explosives" and is represented by Jon Oliver of the National Union of People's Lawyers.

"Our laws remain unclear in their definition of what a political prisoner is," he said.

Gov't to start spending by next month

By Christine D. Neustadter

FRUSTRATED Aquino's protesters said the government would be able to spend money for projects as early as next month since that he is set to sign next week the 2003 national budget.

The President said he and his economic advisers discussed the other day the "front loading" of the monetary volume of money that the government will spend in the future.

They expect that the budget will be increased and viewed as

Dec. 15 and we would do front-loading by January. The money will be returned for dis-aggregated items," he said emphatically.

Budget allocations and their distributions (expenditure)

The Agency's administration had been criticized for underestimating its budget, but the President came up with a $73.4-billion stimulus package to boost government spending for the last quarter of this year.

DOOMSDAY FOR A DRUG MULE

Gov't leaves Pinoy's fate in China to God

By T. Argente

ONLY a miracle can save a Filipino from being executed in China today after last-minute appeals were rejected by Chinese authorities.

The Philippine government yesterday scuttled hopes with reports for a miracle to save theiling trafficking convict from execution in the Guangxi Shuangyao Prison in southern China.

The death sentence on the Filipino, 35, will be pronounced at the Guiliu Prison and International People's Court today after an 8:30 a.m. meeting with his attorney, who were flown there by the Department of Foreign Affairs.

He will then be transported to the Guiliu Prison, which is two hours away from Nanning by land, before being executed by lethal injection "if at all it will be afforded," DPA spokesperson Assistant Secretary Basil Hernandez told reporters.

Still praying

"We are still hoping we are still praying. The whole government, the whole nation is one with the family in praying that a miracle will happen, that a change of mind would take place so that the conviction will be commuted from death penalty to life imprisonment. That is our prayer and hope," he told a forum at the Philippine Information Agency.

Still, I hope the whole Filipino nation would join us in the prayer at this time of the need of our kinsman (comprador)," he added.

Two of the Filipino convict's siblings and two other relatives were seated in China, Hernandez said.

"The family will be accompanied by a Philippine consulate during the trial," he said.

A Mass was celebrated yesterday for the Filipino convict, who will only be in the land of his love on the day of his execution.

The Filipino was nabbed at the border in conventional hijacks on Sept. 23, 2008 upon his arrival from Malaysia after 1,495 kilograms of heroin was found in his possession.

Last month, China's Supreme People's Court affirmed the death sentence on the Filipino.

His President Aquino has been supposed to go to China to deliver President Aquino's letter of appeal to Chinese President Hu Jintao for a commutation of the Filipino's sentence on humanitarian grounds. But the government failed to arrange his trip.

Grim reminder

Hernandez said the government would continue to hope for a possible commutation and stay of the execution, even though the Chinese have never announced a death sentence for him.

"The appeal that we're doing is on humanitarian and compassionate grounds. We want to hold onto that, not only for the sake of the Filipino but for the sake of the family. That's why we're asking to the Filipino people to continue praying that the miracle would happen," he said.

"Still, that innocent victim, we should continue hoping," he added.

He, however, noted that other nationals had been executed despite appeals from their respective governments.

"The Chinese have a very strict anti-drug policy. Whatever their court decides on is implemented," he said.

Hernandez said the case should serve as a grim reminder of the dire consequence of drug trafficking.

"We're appealing to the Filipino not to be lured by international drug syndicates. They have different modus operandi. We should be wary of their monetary offers that in the end make you pay for your life in China, drug is equivalent to death. This is also true in other countries," he said.

Until the arrest, the Filipino family did not know he was engaged in drug trafficking, and Hernandez said he had a heart "rending look and death," according to his relatives.

As Aquino China's tough stance, Filipino relatives and Chinese authorities would send the Philippine government's plea for the commutation of the death sentence on the Filipino convict. With a report from Tina C. Sanchez

Hire for long term, ILO exec urges companies

By Philip C. Tobias

OSAKA, Japan—Think long term.

Companies that want to be successful in the long run should recruit in other markets and not just have subsidiaries for short-term profits, an International Labor Organization (ILO) expert said yesterday.

Joe Belduc, a ILO employment specialist, said firms that hire regular workers and invest in increasing their productivity are the ones that should eventually emerge as successful and prosperous.

Not good for morale

"Hiring workers whose contracts are for every short period of time—that cannot be good either for the morale of those workers or in terms of the investment in those workers," he said.

He is one of the experts at ILO's 20th and the Pacific Regional Meeting here, talking policies on job protection and economic growth amid the global financial crisis. The meeting attended by labor unions and other stakeholders from the region ends on Wednesday.

He said commercialism was a quick response by companies to globalization, but he cautioned that firms should "think long term."

"Countries are faced with many pressures as a result of world trade and globalization. These kinds of trade policies provide companies with a means by which they can address some of these pressures, but hiring and firing, one has to think long term," he said.

He said using contractual casual labor increases a company's productivity, which would eventually prove detrimental to a company's bottom line.

Long-term planning

"In a company, if one worker is going to be around for only six months, you have less incentive to invest in the productivity of that worker and providing him with more skills training because you know that after six months he'll be gone," Belduc said.

He said, however, that long-term planning may be a "big challenge" for many companies because they're required to report on their financial operations every quarter in many cases.

House joins fray for Naia 1 rehab

THE HOUSE of Representatives is getting into the act and will take into account the House Japan International Support (Jais) was voted on after the recent quake.

In House Resolution No. 3635, Rep. Calogio Magpayo of the party list group Alliance of Voluntary Associations (Ava), said a major aspect is to help companies that make welfare and others the local business industry.

Magpayo asked the House committee on transportation and communication to look for the problem in Naia Terminal 1 could be addressed through legislative action.

A 2000 survey by the "The Golden Gateway to Japan," a popular website with over 7,000 airport, said the Naia Terminal 1 is the 10th worst airport in the world.

It based the ranking on public and survey reviews. Complaints about Naia included safety concerns, lack of comfortable seating, rude staff, lengthy security, poor facilities, few services to pass the time, delays and cancellations by employees said others kinds of being at the airport.

Rated worst of the worst

The Naia, the Naia was ranked higher than such airports as Frankfurt, Germany; Heathrow, London; London; Luton and the Los Angeles International Airport, which was rated the worst.

Despite these reports, IATA General Manager, Jose Angel Hernandez believes it is unfair to label the terminal as the worst in the world since much has been done to improve it," Magpayo said.

"The terminal has been a frequent target of criticism of members who are in a mixed and mixed," Magpayo said.

He said Hernandez had addressed some of the complaints, including sanitation, staff and equipment, which had been needed since last year.

Magpayo asked the committee to ensure representatives of the Department of Transportation and Communications, Manila International Airport Authority and other agencies concerned to shed light on the matter.

Baldoz defends outsourcing at Kyoto meet

By Philip C. Tobias

OSAKA, Japan—Labor Secretary Baldoz yesterday defended the government's policy on outsourcing at the International Labor Organization (ILO) meeting being held here after an ILO delegate questioned the government's handling of the labor dispute of Philippine Airlines (PAL).

Baldoz declined, however, to discuss the details of the labor case between PAL and its ground crew union—the IMA Employees Association (IMA)—but emphasized that the government was only making sure that both the rights of management and of labor were respected.

"I would rather that I would not discuss the details of the PAL case because that is now pending in our courts and it would be premature and unfair," Baldoz said during a panel discussing on workers' rights and outsourcing.

An ILO Baldoz had said he shared the labor case, noting that the protesting workers "have been struggling" for more than a month.

IMA laid off 1,000 members of its ground crew in September and announced their jobs but IMA questioned their dismissal before the Court of Appeals.

Baldoz said the Commission recognized both the rights of labor and the prerogatives of management and that the government would step in when necessary.

"In our Constitution, there is a lack of rights on the workers' side and on the employer's side. The right to collective bargaining, right to strike, powerful concerted activities and security of tenure (for labor) and business' right to manage and respond to contingencies and a reasonable system of investment, as long as it is done in a responsible manner," Baldoz said.

"There's what we look at whenever in terms of outsourcing, which is highly economic and political, comes up," he added.

Baldoz said that while Philippine law allowed for outsourcing and subcontracting, there are restrictions.

"Outsourcing does not mean subcontracting," he said.

Clearly, we must require firms to be substantially responsible. This is the first time that it being done and this is part of the government's direction," he said.

Baldoz said that discussion between government, business and labor had come to the conclusion that "there is legitimate subcontracting."

"What came out was the recognition of labor groups and management that there is legitimate subcontracting which should be recognized but that this should not be used to circumvent labor laws," he said.

"Of course, there are also a concept that some business activities must be outsourced. And that outsourcing is not a unilateral exercise of management. If there's a union, there should be a collective agreement," he added.

Read-along kids swap storytellers

By Juan Escudero Jr.
 Naga City

IT WAS probably the most innovative setup so far for a read-along session conducted by the Inquirer Southern Luzon since 2006 when the Bureau started selling stories to children in the provinces it covers.

Two groups of youngsters gathered separately on buses en route on Nov. 26 in Cagayan de Oro, the largest language in Naga City with a population of more than 200,000.

Fifty-year-olds, aged 8 to 15 years, sat on the floor of the air-conditioned rooms of the day care center, a few steps from a covered basketball court where 150 Grades 5 and 6 pupils occupied plastic monoblock chairs. All of them are beneficiaries of the National Parenting Filipino Program of the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD).

During the lessons on up the street as participants in celebration of the United Nations' Declaration of Children's Rights were the language and city officials, officers and staff members of the DSWD, and teachers.

Mayor John Bongan read "Punta," a tale written by Mike Bongan and illustrated by Charles Fiala, to the pre-schoolers. Simultaneously, at the covered court, bureau spokeswoman read "Bibidok at Pipidok," a book written by Rene Villanueva and directed by Renato Geronzo.

The two storytellers later switched audiences.

Bong, who played fourth runner-up in the 2010 Miss Universe 10, sat on her own in the DSWD's Ambassadors for Children's Rights and Welfare.

Language coordinator Joel Barrios, chair of the community's education committee, observed that the two reading sessions were different in many ways but effective.

The pupils actively participated in the session and answer questions often he managed to make them retain the lesson of his story's main character.

The literary genre described Pipidok as a mischievous dog compared to the lovable and well-mannered Bibidok, but also enjoyed reading the part where the author said, "Pipidok loved milk, vegetables and egg white. Pipidok was fond of milk drinks, chocolate and candies."

"What do you eat in school?" he asked Grade 5 pupils Leticia. In all classes, the boy answered that he reads the PI his new magazine as a diversion with those who classmates as they can buy "chicken" (junk food) during recess.

The simply stated that the lesson is conveyed by the story of the siblings Bibidok and Pipidok are not too far from home. Although having different traits, the two continue to help each other, especially during difficult times. Pipidok was almost possessed by a piece of golden mean to find on the street. Bibidok and the teacher made Pipidok walk the mean.

Bongan talked about the necessity of a dog team with a short tail. Because he found difficulty processing from the dog's name, the speaker kept the children glued to his narration as every picture flashed on the screens behind him.

During the Q and A, one of the young learners especially remembered the scene from among the animals Punta met. In the story, the scene ended in Punta's story of being here with all tail but "no one, no one, no one" to be seen—other than you are."

Deal in Malaysia: Let monitors stay

THE GOVERNMENT and separatist Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF) agreed yesterday to extend the mandate of international ceasefire monitors until 2013 despite recent clashes that killed scores of combatants and civilians.

The government, which has been dominantly Christian, opposed as a result of previous offensives led by government forces.

The latest round of talks took place in Manila, which is leading talks of international monitors.

At the same time, MILF leaders, who have been based in the southern Mindanao region since 2009, also include members from Libya, Brazil, Norway, Japan and the European Union.

Talks have been called into question since the government accused the rebels of killing 10 government soldiers in an ambush in October that President Aquino had expected talks for an all-out offensive against the 11,000-strong rebel and instance. They are, however, given the risk of bringing in South Vietnamese, a former MILF leader who had gone unacknowledged in threatening the talks.

During earlier talks, the parties rejected a government proposal for autonomy as falling short of their aspirations and said they wanted a status like Mindanao state in a US federal union, which would require amendments to the Constitution. The government did not agree, saying it wants to preserve the Philippines as a unitary republic under its current Constitution.

Climate action plan still lacks backbone

THE JICA representative has now been formally approved by the National Change Action Plan (NCAP), for which President Aquino was named the "protector" of all Philippine companies.

It is a far cry from the President with such a title for the PRO-AD campaign merely a courtesy, considering that he will be sworn in as President on 17/20th of the Chinese Olympic Day of 2008 (which is irrelevant).

For instance, the NOAA toll works on a pay-as-you-go, 800-840-0177, 24-hour-a-day line that is open to anyone with an Internet connection. It is a free phone service, with no national number. It is also critical to the availability of the biologically important Agave (agave) to environmental conservationists and the flower trade, which is a big agave-growing block in a leading global agave export market. Mr. Aguilar's USDA approval for the flower breeding, but not for the seed, is an institutional barrier to the United States for USDA flower growers, given the fact the US buying and many companies, have been told, responsible for the massive destruction of our species.

We would also like to point out that there are some people, and movements, who are really in the "kinging" act of 1998, the Federalist Circle of 1994 and the Primary Code of 1975 that result, essentially agreed to. MCLAP's creation is environmental culture and human nature. Laisita decision showed high court's true colors

But if one said that the Congress decision is now, after passage, a dispute was resolved, that is much more reasonable than left unresolved.

The positive feeling brought about by the "party" seems to be overshadowed by the fact that the ruling is also very much infused with politics. Whether it is an ideological or a policy issue is not known as yet. Nor is it known as to 'Occupy Mendiola' ralliers dispersed

By James T. Gaud

FOR THE SECOND day in a row, militant groups inspired by the Occupy Wall Street movement in the United States failed to reach the China-Roses Bridge (formerly Mendiola Bridge) in Manila where they had planned to stage a camp-out to dramatize their dissatisfaction with the Aquino government's failure to deliver basic social services.

At around 7:30 p.m. yesterday, riot police used tear gas, chemical and water cannons to disperse the around 200 'Occupy - Mendiola' protesters who were standing on the bridge.

Many of them were picked up by police and taken to the Manila Police District (MPD) headquarters.

The fire was not identified although

US marks 70th anniversary of attack on Pearl Harbor

HONOLULU—The United States yesterday marked the 70th anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor with memorial services, funeral-like services and a solemn ceremony at the site.

President Barack Obama called for the nation to "remember the 2,400 Americans who died on Dec. 7, 1941, and the 68,000 who were wounded, including more than 4,000 who were killed in the attack on the USS Arizona." Obama said the attack on Pearl Harbor was "one of the darkest days in our nation's history."

The attack on Pearl Harbor was the deadliest attack on the United States in its history. It was the only attack on the United States in its history that resulted in the death of more than 100,000 Americans.

China's Hu tells Navy: Prepare for war

BEIJING—Chinese President Hu Jintao on Tuesday urged the Navy to prepare for military combat, amid growing regional tensions over maritime disputes and a US campaign to assert itself as a Pacific power.

The Navy should "accelerate its modernization in a steady way, and make extended preparations for military combat in order to make greater contribution to safeguard national security," he said.

Addressing the powerful Central Military Commission, he said, "Our work must doubly include the main theme of national defense and military building."

The commission, which reported in a statement on a government website, was at the United States and Beijing's high-level have expressed concern over its naval buildup, particularly in the South China Sea.

Several naval exercises have contested China's own parts of the South China Sea, believed to encompass large oil and gas reserves, while China claims it all. One kind of global maritime trade passes through the region.

Vietnam and the Philippines have accused Chinese forces of increasing aggression there.

In a statement of Hu's commission, the official Xinhua news agency quoted the president as saying China's Navy should "make extended preparations for war."

The Foreign Ministry denounced Hu's speech, saying that Beijing had the right to develop its military, although it should do so transparently.

"They have a right to develop military capabilities and so plan, just as we do," said Chinese spokesperson George Liu.

Another spokesperson, John John Kirby said, "Our naval forces are ready and they'll stay ready."

Navy Department spokesperson Mark Steno said, "We want to see stronger military to military ties with China and we want to see greater engagement... that helps answer questions we might have about Chinese intentions."

His announcement comes in the wake of trips to Asia by several senior US officials, including President Barack Obama, Defense Secretary Leon Panetta and Secretary of State Hillary Clinton.

US undersecretary of defense William E. Brown said he was in Seoul in Beijing with two Chinese counterparts for military-to-military talks.

Clinton Press Secretary John I. Kirby said, "We have a commitment to 'strategic dialogue' to regional territorial disputes including those in the South China Sea."

OCCUPY protesters converge at a site in front of a building in South Gate, California.

Occupy protest targets home foreclosures

SEATTLE—The Occupy Wall Street protest has moved into the mortgage market.

Facing an increasingly difficult to camp in public spaces, Occupy protesters across the United States are including foreclosed homes and boarded-up properties, signaling a shift in the movement's focus.

In Atlanta, protesters held a rally in a park and used whistles and sirens to disrupt an auction of seized homes. In New York, they marched through a residential neighborhood carrying signs that read "Kowtow on banks, not people." Los Angeles protesters called around a family of six who plans to vacate the home they lost to mortgage foreclosure.

"It's pretty clear that the fight is against the banks, and the Occupy movement is about occupying spaces. In occupying a space that should belong to homeowners but belongs to the banks, we're taking the fight one step further than the Occupy movement," said Jeff O'Connell, one of the organizers of Occupy Chicago.

The events reflect the protesters' anger over foreclosures since the housing crisis that has seen millions of homes go foreclosed after the burst of the housing bubble that helped trigger the economy's recovery.

Foreclosures are now widespread, representing nearly 13 million homes, according to CoreLogic, a real estate research firm.

Protesters say that banks and financial firms own abandoned foreclosed homes that could be becoming people.

In Seattle, the movement is similar to the anti-foreclosure movement, as protesters took over a formerly boarded-up home last month. They painted the home with green, black and red paint, and wrote up a banner that says "Occupy Every Thing—No Banks No Landlords."

While groups have already been made in a number of squating states in Seattle and Oakland, it remains unclear how widespread the movement is in that state.

In Oakland, police spokesperson Sgt. Ray Douglas said he's aware that the movement called for people to occupy foreclosed homes, but said it's difficult to distinguish between the people who are occupying homes as a political statement and those who do it for shelter.

"The reason property issue is of concern is that homelessness," Douglas said, "we'll treat them all as trespassers."

In Seattle, protesters took over a boarded-up warehouse that the developer had evicted. In an announcement, the protesters said they placed it to make the warehouse into a community center, and hoped a party the night they opened the building. Police arrested 15 people in the process of clearing it out.

Seattle police spokesperson Sgt. Sam Whitcomb said his department was responding to reports regarding the issue of evictions of occupying groups. Seattle made where it is camped in a demonstration.

PSALM aims to raise P85B for 2012 expenses

On-lending with gov't or notes issuance

By Amy R. Riano

STATE-OWNED Power Sector Assets and Liability Management Corp. plans to raise P85 billion only next year to service its financing and operational commitments for 2012.

PSALM president and CEO Vincent M. Ledesma said the plan was to raise the funds through either on-lending arrangements with the government or issuance of regular prom notes.

Of the P85 billion, PSALM intends to use P60.7 billion for debt servicing, P15.3 billion for operational expenses, and P4.2 billion for the "reserve debt" from 2011 operations.

Ledesma said the amount was determined on the assumption that PSALM would be able to start collecting interest charges for clients of debt ESCOs and structured contract cost (SCC) and pay.

He mentioned a 7% annual collection efficiency of ESCOs and SCCSC starting the third quarter of 2012, he said.

It was recalled that PSALM had submitted a petition to the Energy Regulatory Commission, asking to recover P139 billion worth of structured contract cost and interest costs.

Structured debt refers to the financial obligation of state firm National Energy Corp. (Nepco), which was not extended by the purchase from the sale of Nepco's power assets.

The estimated amount of an eight-year contract is calculated every year to the difference between the structured contract obligation and the interest received from the sale of the contract to the company.

Ledesma said PSALM was compelled to incur additional funding to fulfill its structured contract obligations due to its portfolio. PSALM was also considered to have the burden of cash-strapped Nepco.

As of mid-2010, Nepco's total liabilities stood at P25.5 billion.

Also, the debtors of the over-extended program—Nepco—would have been a source of funds for PSALM—made it necessary for the agency to raise funds, Ledesma said.

PSALM plans to ensure the role of the existing government-owned power assets and control of the assets by March next year, starting with the Nipco's power assets.

Also, with the country's government-owned National Grid Corp. of the Philippines, for the possible sale of PSALM's assets.

A Filipino Christmas at the heart of ASiA Enclaves Alabang

If one were to verbally express what a Filipino Christmas experience is like, one would certainly only need to smile and let the meaning of a Filipino Christmas come out through their eyes. There is a certain warmth that comes out, that slight hesitation and childish smile, the bright-eyed look of the person whom has spotted a familiar parcel glowing in the distance, a holy feeling in your gut that prepares you for Christmas Eve, and not to mention, a festive setting in the belly for pulo bumbong and cups of warm tokolate-eh. There is an ecstatic feel to decorating Filipino Christmas since it is a combination of East, West, and uniquely Filipino pre-Hispanic tradition.

Out of all the countries in Southeast Asia, only the Philippines can claim to be the first in representing Advent and the real spirit towards Christmas Eve. One does not need to be a Catholic to realize that Metro Manila, out of the capitals of Asia, has a distinct and soulful flavor during Christmas season which is not found anywhere else. Like ASiA Enclaves, one can find that distinct feel that is often projected in Alabang, just south of Metro Manila, has its offer.

PHINMA Properties, the country's leading developer in medium-rise condominiums, gives future residents best-value-for-money deals this holiday season with ASiA Enclaves Alabang. With 58 square meter units priced below

Php 1.6M, and at 43 square meter units from the ground to the top most floor at approximately Php 1.9M, and no downpayment options, ASiA Enclaves remains to be the lowest and most affordable-priced condominium development south of Makati area. Like the different flavors of a Filipino Christmas, here are the reasons which summarize the flavors and colorful combination of what is ASiA Enclaves.

Easy-to-reach location

An easy 15-min to 20-min ride from Makati CBD, and 10-min ride from the airport, ASiA Enclaves is located strategically between Alabang and Dr. A. Santos Avenue (commonly known as Sucat Interchange) along West Service Road - right beside Hilledborough Village. One can appreciate the location with its easy access from any public terminal vehicle that uses the Skyway, South Luzon Expressway, Alabang-Zapote Road, and Sucat Interchange. Today, the eyes of a commuter on the Skyway becomes brighter as one spots ASiA Enclaves appearing like a white Christmas parcel located immediately in the Alabang area.

Different Flavors

Like the personalized flavor of a Filipino Christmas, ASiA Enclaves gives the best of Asia by providing three distinct themes: the Japanese enclave of Ohasa, a Thai-inspired Siam Enclave, and an Indonesian Siam Enclave, with Filipino-themed Kuya Maynila that unites all three enclaves with one wide promenade. At the heart of the community lies the Filipino-themed Club Pasko, deliberately designed to cater to the Filipino desire for gatherings with a multipurpose hall and a swimming pool.

Well-ventilated inside and out

With 75% generous open spaces, and greenery in between the mid-rise buildings, all enclaves are well-ventilated all-year round. Daily temperature of this December month is heartily welcoming for residents who can enjoy a 30, 36, or 45 sqm unit with aluminum powder-coated sliding windows that open to the fresh air of Laguna de Bay or greenery of the Hilledborough Village. One can enjoy a cup of traditional tokolate-eh inside a tall space that can comfortably fit a seven-foot tall Christmas tree. There is even room for their pulo bumbong in a separate dining room - two units sharing the same wall can be combined for extra living room space or sleeping area.

Strong quality, faster turn-over, better investment

PHINMA Properties specializes in a construction system to create high-quality, cement-poured residential mid-rise buildings in ASiA Enclaves Alabang. Being the only triple 600-600 developer in the country, PHINMA Properties ensures that ASiA Enclaves is built without sacrificing quality and space. With this in mind, residents can comfortably move in by this first half of 2012 - only a year after its grand launch last May '12, 2011. This faster return on investment and quality is one fitting gift for anyone who wants to spend only the best for their loved ones this Christmas.

To celebrate the ongoing construction of Ohasa Enclave, there will also be an exclusive 1-day viewing of actual turnover unit at Seto 4 the Open House on Sunday, December 11, 2011. We will be offering tokolate-eh and pulo bumbong to celebrate Christmas with a true Filipino spirit at ASiA Enclaves Alabang. Experience the new kind of luxury living this holiday season!

We invite you to visit www.phinmaproperties.com or call 535-6800 or 0917-5356800 for more information on how to visit the Open House.

Head Pie
 THE "HEAD" OF THE PARTY
 This is a traditional Christmas cake, often made with dried fruit and spices. It is a rich, moist cake that is often served with cream or frosting. The "head" refers to the shape of the cake, which is often round and decorated with a swirl of frosting.

Original Sausages with Mustard Sauce
 These sausages are made with a blend of pork and beef, seasoned with herbs and spices. They are served with a mustard sauce that adds a tangy flavor. The sausages are often served with a side of vegetables or potatoes.

Roast Turkey
 This is a traditional Christmas dish, often served with stuffing and gravy. The turkey is roasted to perfection, with a golden-brown skin. It is a centerpiece of the holiday meal.

The Christmas dinner is a time for family and friends to gather around the table. It is a special occasion that is celebrated with food and drink. The meal is often a mix of traditional and modern dishes, reflecting the tastes of the times. The Christmas dinner is a time for reflection and gratitude, as we look back on the past year and look forward to the future.

Breakout roles create stars; focus, timing spell success

VIEWFINDER

By: Eusebio S. Vilando

NEW FACES and veteran pros are to give us so-called breakout or breakthrough roles...major or at least attention-calling parts in TV series or movies designed to showcase them in a special way, or to link them closer up to the main level.

Recent breakthrough stars include Martin Escudero in "Zombadings" and Vice Ganda in "Trophy Wife."

They are currently regarded as one of the top talents on the TV and film scenes—who, despite modest success this year, are gearing up for even bigger and more important roles.

Another young talent who broke through earlier this year is Steve Tynan, who played the black sheep in a dysfunctional family on Steve Austin's comedy drama series, "The Golden Age."

Martin Escudero in "Zombadings"

For the effectivity of his bid for stardom was diminished because he had to "share" that spotlight with other young talents. Even if they didn't make as big and good an impression as he did, he still got lost in the crowd at times. In breakthrough bids, that won't do.

Other observations: The same rule holds true for Martin Escudero, whose big win via "Zombadings" has also been strangled due to his poor choice of follow-up project, the new TV series, "PS. I Love You."

Like Kary, Martin has to share the spotlight on "PS" with other talents, in his new portrayal's impact is much less distinctive and sensitive than his old role was in "Zombadings."

The young actor really should have waited for another role showcase, rather than agreeing to be just part of the "side casting" called as "PS."

Incidentally, another new talent is getting his big break on "PS." At 16, Marki, Aguir's half-sibling, who's cast in the potentially eye-making role of Gabby Concepcion's nephew and childhood friend. However, he's facing a hard time staying through in the "unconventional" new series—no, that's another golden opportunity that could end up as his breakthrough.

New talent and their families really have to learn the importance of timing and focus in a career's career development...and, as in Martin's case, when to do after the new talent's initial breakthrough gambit has proven to be successful.

PS: Escudero

Martin Escudero's big win via 'Zombadings' has been abridged due to his poor choice of a next project, the new TV series, 'PS. I Love You'

The Smart Way to Drink Vitamin C Every Day

With the many things you want to do in one day, your body sometimes finds it hard to keep up. That's why it's important to get your daily dose of Vitamin C.

Apart from boosting your immune system, Vitamin C enables your body to produce collagen, a protein essential to every cell of your body. This vital nutrient maintains the bones and supports the skin, bones, and muscles, thus providing them the strength and resilience to fight daily wear and tear. For busy and active individuals like you, it is essential to continuously replenish your body's Vitamin C.

Good thing there's Smart C⁺, a most refreshing and convenient way to get your daily dose of Vitamin C. Each 500ml bottle of Smart C⁺ is packed with 500mg of Vitamin C. Best of all, Smart C⁺ contains real fruit juice with zero added preservatives and zero artificial sweeteners so you're not left with that cloyingly sweet aftertaste. It also has zero artificial coloring, giving it a lightness and freshness that you can actually see.

And with these thirst-quenching ideas, Smart C⁺ comes from London Squash, Orange Crush and Fanta Grapefruit—and two convenient sizes (500ml and 300ml), you have multiple choices to keep up with your busy pressures in life, anytime, anywhere.

NO ADDED PRESERVATIVES, ARTIFICIAL COLORANTS, AND ARTIFICIAL SWEETENERS

AOTY/Johnson

When young actors like AJ have to compete with others in the same show, they can't really leave up their names as people just aren't allowed, even if they end up on their hands while juggling a half-dozen speaking parts, as Aaron learned.

Truly, achieving break-through status is only the first step to the real making process. The tough task is how to build on that initial triumph, and viewers and the TV film industry's money and talent agents you as more than just a one-off overnight success story.

Take Vice Ganda. He clocked big time on TV's "Shaneen," but he waited and waited before coming up with his first film career, which did very well on the tube.

However, instead of accepting all the offers that came his way, he waited some more before he appeared in his second movie, "Bagbag sa Bagas," which was a "success" enough—because he knew how to wait, focus and follow up to his true advantage. Hopefully, another breakout?

THE JOURNAL OF THE

TRANSDUCER

By Mary C. O'Neil

THE PROBLEM: The use of shared information systems can enhance productivity, but only if the system is used properly. Unfortunately, too many organizations fail to provide the proper training and support for their employees. This leads to a high rate of system rejection and a low level of system usage. The result is a waste of money and a loss of productivity.

10x10 grid for word search puzzle. The grid contains various letters, with some cells being blacked out to form a pattern. The letters are arranged in a way that allows for the discovery of words related to the 'A-Z' theme.

Accreditation: Quality Assurance Across Borders

By Josephine L. Miller

Audience: Quality Assurance Review Board, is the theme for this year's 23rd Annual General Assembly of the Philippine Association of Colleges and Universities Commission on Accreditation (PACUCA). The theme contains PACUCA's vision that is to be a global, public and private, to go with international standards. The objectives of the assembly are: 1) to discuss national-based education as a strategy toward quality assurance; 2) to study and apply the implications of national-based education to PACUCA's policies, standards, procedures and practices; 3) to discuss the future direction of PACUCA's accreditation; and 4) to elect the 15 members of the PACUCA Review Board.

To legitimize the event, the keynote speaker will be Dr. Angela Fung-Chi Hsu, Professor of Higher Education and Chair of the Office of Research and Development of Higher Education, Evaluation and Assessment Council of Taiwan (HSEACT).

Today's assembly will be held at the Century Hotel, Miami. Speeches and papers in English were distributed from ICIAM's official website, with content in Spanish available only from ICIAM's local website in the United States.

The PhiKappa Association of Colleges and Universities Committee on Accreditation (PhiKAA) is a joint accrediting agency for private liberal colleges & universities devoted to ensuring that its members maintain
